SPEAKER SAYS JEWS ON BATTLE FRONT SUFFER

Dr. Kallen Tells Argon Lodge How the People Are Driven Back and Forth by Fighters.

Jews living on the battle border line between Russia and Germany have been driven back and forth with every advance or retreat of the Russian and German forces, dying by the thousands in the campaigns and suffering from exposure and want. How to relieve this suffering and provide for the future is one of the great questions of the Jewish problem, said Dr. Horace H. Kallen, professor of philosophy in the University of Wisconsin, who talked Sunday night on "Jewish Problems and the Mission of Israel" before Argon Lodge, No. 413, in the Eighth Street Temple.

"I was made in Germany, but improved in America," said Dr. Kallen by way of introduction after he had been introduced by Judge George Milton Strauss, president of the Municipal Court. Dr. Kallen dwelt at length on the cruelties practiced on the defenseless Jews by Russian as well as German soldiers. "I have seen positively that such stories are true," said he. "I know that I knew they were not, but I know only too well that the wives, mothers and daughters of the Russian Jews who are in the Russian army have been pauperized and subjected to all manner of suffering.

"The pauperized Jews are dependent partly on the Russian government for their support, and they receive a few roubles from this source. But their main source of help is from their brethren in the United States.

"In order to aid these Jews we cannot depend on organized charities which are at work abroad. We must make up our own specialized charities for our people and take care of them.

Henry Hurwitz, chancellor of the International Menorah Association of New York, also spoke. He told of the work of the association in teaching the Jewish college men and women through the forty-five collegiate branches of the association Hebrew history and languages.

DONALD BRIAN ON SCREEN.

Appears at Leader Theater Today in Lanky Feature.

Donald Brian, one of the most popular young stars of the American stage, makes his debut as a photodrama player in a Paramount picture, "The Voice in the Fog," being shown at the Leader today and tomorrow. The picture is a Lanky feature and was adapted for the screen from the novel of the same name by Harold MacGrath. In "The Voice in the Fog," Mr. Brian appears as Thomas Webb, a young Englishman, who, inherits a title but transfers its use to a professional crook for three months, in payment of a gambling debt. Webb becomes a steward on a liner and meets a young American girl from whom the professional crook previously had stolen a valuable necklace. The girl recognizes Webb's voice as having heard it the night the necklace was stolen. Webb did not know of the theft, however. In order to keep watch on the young man, the girl employs him as private secretary. As a climax of a melodramatic situation, Webb is able to explain himself and claim the love of the girl when he reveals his true identity at the expiration of the three months' period.

NEW-YORK-DAY-BY-DAY. O. O. MCINTYRE.

Special Correspondent of The Washington Herald.
New York, Dec. 21.—The first snowfall of the year caught New York, as usual, unprepared. Apartment dwellers had the same old experience with icy apartments, while the proprietors temporized about putting in big supplies of coal so early.

All the trains were stalled and commuters were forced to stay in town overnight. Those who did get in had the exciting experience of leaving the house at 7 o'clock to catch a 6 o'clock train.

Arthur, William Brown, the artist, was found: "Will give you a bed regardless of conventions."

In the Hotel Cody in Grand Rapids, he found the prize sign of all is to be found in the Hotel Hermitage in enlightened New York. It heralds to the world that it has: "The best bed for love or money."

Restaurant waiters, who believe that any person from out of town is what they are pleased to call a hawk, have an odd way of separating the city folk from the bush league visitors.

If they can differentiate between the waiter and the omnibus, they are city people. Probably a lot of folk who come to New York wouldn't know an omnibus if it jumped in their plate, but most of them eat a regular meal in comfort.

There is a man in New York who does quite a bit of traveling, and one of his favorite amusements is to pick out amusing signs in hotels. On his last trip he discovered this one in the Gibson House in Cincinnati:

"Conventions do not interfere with the care of our regular patrons."

REV. DR. MAGUIRE LEAVES C. U.

Head of Latin Department Will Go to Philadelphia.

Rev. John D. Maguire, S. T. L., Ph. D., head of the Latin department at the Catholic University of America and dean of the faculty of letters, has accepted the position of removable rector of St. Elizabeth's parish, Philadelphia.

Dr. Maguire studied in the public schools of Philadelphia, and was graduated from the Christian Brothers' College of that city in 1882. He then entered St. Charles Seminary, Overbrook, and there pursued courses leading to the priesthood.

In 1890 he was sent to the Catholic University, and in 1894 received the degree of bachelor of sacred theology. The following year the licentiate in sacred theology was conferred upon him, and in the same year he was chosen by the board of trustees to prepare to open the department of Latin languages and literature.

Most Students Earn Education.

Statistics just compiled by Prof. Richardson, secretary of George Washington University, show that 70 per cent of the students in the nine departments of the institution are employed and are working their way through college. This percentage is said to be the largest of any university of its standing in the United States.

OLD DUTCH MARKET OPENS A NEW STORE

Hundreds Pay Visit to Establishment at North Capitol and H Street.

The Old Dutch Market yesterday opened to the public its seventeenth Washington store. The new branch, the most modern of the string, is at 729 North Capitol street, near the corner of H street, and opposite the Government Printing Office. The store was opened at 10 a. m. and was thronged by the public from 4 to 6 and from 7 to 10 p. m. hundreds of persons availing themselves of the opportunity to inspect the finely equipped establishment and the big assortment of attractively arranged goods. An orchestra furnished musical selections while a corps of more than twenty employees, in spotless white aprons and caps, showed visitors around the store. The establishment will be open for business this morning at 9 o'clock.

The store is unique in many respects. It is one of the two of the seventeen stores that has a lunch room feature. To the right upon entering is a long counter, over which is served all the dishes of the modern lunch room. These dishes are prepared upstairs in an immaculately appointed kitchen and are sent below in a dumb waiter. The bill of fare is a lengthy one. The equipment is all new and the steam table is extremely attractive in appearance. Arm chairs are furnished for patrons. Because of the proximity to the Government Printing Office, the management expects to do an enormous business during the lunch period.

The delicatessen section is another interesting feature of the store. This is one of the four stores of the string that has a delicatessen department. The sausage, cheese, and other delicacies are displayed in an attractive glass case near the entrance. The case has a refrigerator attachment.

The meat department is marked by a scrupulous cleanliness. The meats are kept in storage at the rear of the store in an enormous ice box. An ice box of similar size is provided for vegetables and fruits. The grocery section of the store is unusually well stocked. A force of approximately twenty employees will be maintained at the store.

ELECTRIC VEHICLE MEN HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

"Skeets" Watson and Roy Erkman Do Honors of the Evening at Castelli's.

By "SI GROGAN."

E. V. A. gave its annual Christmas party yesterday afternoon, and lest you do not know who "it" is you are told that E. V. A. is the cognomen of the Electric Vehicle Association of America. The party was held at Castelli's, in Ninth street. "Skeets" Watson, did the honors as Kris Kringle and found for every one a Christmas present that had a real significance. Before the party got under way Kris appointed C. Roy Erkman as "king of festivities." "King" Erkman read a message from R. Bruce Emerson, chairman of the association, regretting his inability to be present, owing to the recent death of his youngest child. A rising vote of sympathy was tendered Mr. Emerson. Next, the "king" called upon those present to drink a standing toast to the memory of Edward Marlow, past chairman of the association, who died recently.

After the first course the fun of the evening began. Telegrams addressed to various members and guests, asking that they do the most outlandish things, were read. Intermittent with the telegrams were remarks by a number of those present at the request of the chairman of festivities. Those responding were C. G. Schaffer, George Taggart, assistant corporation counsel; Fred Harvey, James P. P. Orbell, J. J. Haas, James Orme, Howard Clark, T. B. Spencer, Kirk Miller, Kirk Miller, L. R. Genmull, R. R. Genmull, and others.

Immediately following the banquet, the party adjourned to the Gayety Theater across the street, and heard "Dave Marion, the leading comedian in 'Around the World' crack jokes at the expense of the members of the association. Those present were John J. Baftam, C. M. Marsh, James Orme, C. A. Jones, T. D. McMurrah, Noel Rosasco, Harry Ward, T. A. Brewster, T. B. Spencer, J. Himes, Edgar Orme, Charles Orme, Frank Orbell, "Skeets" Watson, F. A. Koels, Harry Orme, Louis Dougher, H. A. Brooks, C. R. Erkman, F. E. Kneip, T. B. Spencer, Harry Duckstein, Howard Clark, Kirk Miller, L. R. Genmull, R. R. Genmull, I. T. Donohue, E. G. Schaffer, George Taggart, Fred Harvey, C. P. Shattuck, Alfred Young, P. M. Walker, H. A.
